The Journal of Stevenson Studies*

The Journal of Stevenson Studies offers new and original insights into the work of Robert Louis Stevenson and the moral, psychological and cultural ambiguities that he explored in what was soon to become our modern world.

Edited by Linda Dryden & Roderick Watson

Contributions to future issues are invited and should be sent to either of the editors as
MS WORD files in MHRA format & endnotes.

All contributions are subject to peer review by an Editorial Board of internationally recognised Stevenson scholars.
